Introductions

Why We Lift up Pronouns in Introductions

- Everyone has pronouns or a way they want us to refer to them. Naming pronouns reminds us that we cannot know and should never assume we know someone's gender just from knowing their name, seeing their face or body, or hearing their voice.
- Naming pronouns during introductions gives everyone the opportunity to actively consent to how they want others in the room to refer to them. By hearing and using the pronouns people ask us to use, we are respecting everyone's identity.
- Someone's pronouns may change over time for many reasons. Naming pronouns in introductions gives people the opportunity to name who they are and how they want to be referred to in that moment.
- Some people may use different pronouns in different settings, which may be driven by their perceived level of safety in the space.

Introductions

Why We Lift up Racial and Ethnic Identities

- Naming racial identity focuses our awareness on how we show up with each other and particularly with Black, Brown, Indigenous, and other people of color colleagues.
- Naming racial identity focuses our awareness on who is not present.
- Naming racial identity removes our fear of talking about race and instead normalizes it.
- Naming racial identity helps us own our racial identity and what we bring into the space.
- Naming racial identity reminds us that racial groups sit differently in relation to power and resources in the U.S. due to historical and present day manifestations of systemic racism
- Naming racial identity helps us resist habits of white supremacy culture and anti-Blackness and its constant presence.
- Naming racial identity is a proactive disruption of white dominant culture.
- Naming racial identity grounds us in the connections between homelessness and race.
- Naming racial identity names whiteness and invites us to sit with the discomfort of whiteness and the space that it takes up.
- Naming racial identity contributes to doing our work well and building our capacity to build system responses that are equitable.

Why are Partnerships so Important to YHDP?

- We are building a movement to address and end homelessness for young people. It's going to take all of us to make this happen!
- We need utilize all of the strengths and resources of our community and cross-system partners.
- We want to use the YHDP funding to do new and exciting things with a strong and diverse group of service providers.

Community Poll: Who's in the room?

1. What role are you currently playing in your community?
1. What perspectives can you bring to this effort?

Creating Transformative Partnerships

Creating your YHDP planning team provides an opportunity to:

- Build a more inclusive planning and decision-making team with increased representation from BIPOC and youth leaders.
- Eliminate gatekeeping - the unnecessary restrictions on who has access to information, resources, and decision-making.
- Remove barriers to participation and create more authentic engagement opportunities.
- Engage cross-system partners and others who have not been involved or included in past efforts.

Coordinated Community Plan Requirement: Partnership List

What is it?

A list of partners, and a description of their involvement that includes representation from a variety of stakeholder groups.

Decolonizing Strategies

- Which racial/ethnic groups and/or historically disenfranchised LGBTQ2+ partners may be most affected by and concerned with youth homelessness?
- Have partners from different racial/ethnic groups and historically disenfranchised LGBTQ2+ groups – especially those most adversely affected – been informed, meaningfully involved with shared decision making power and authentically represented in the development of the YHDP Coordinated Community Plan?
- How are barriers being removed to support and sustain partners engagement with racially marginalized and historically disenfranchised young people and underfunded grassroots BIPOC and LGBTQ2+ organizations and organizations serving young people with disabilities?

Key Steps to Build Your YHDP Planning Effort

★ Step One: Identify an Organization to Lead

- Should have convening power to bring people together
- Usually, but not always, the CoC lead agency / Collaborative Applicant
- Supports authentic youth collaboration
- Supports day-to-day planning and logistics

★ Step Two: Think Big with the Youth Action Board (YAB)

Intro to Governance

What is Governance?

- The agreements, rules, processes, or policies that guide or direct a group of people, often providing written standards and oversight on how they make decisions and carry out their work or activities
- Not all governance structures are the same! Cities and counties, corporate boards, public schools, and homeless service systems all have their own forms of governance.
- Some forms of governance offer very few opportunities for public participation and decision-making and others offer lots.

Why Does Governance Matter?

- Because we aim to do transformational work. Sharing power with young people requires changing the decision-making process and shifting the power within the community.
- Because solutions to homelessness are only effective when those most impacted are leading. This means we need to not only invite people to the table, but also redistribute decision-making power.
- Because a strong governance structure help you address the system level challenges that individual organizations, coalitions, and agencies are otherwise unequipped to address on their own.
- Because we can work more effectively when we work with transparency and everyone understands their role in the decision-making process.

What Does It Look Like to Share Power?

Video Description of Participatory Budgeting

HUD Expectations for CoCs and YHDP

The federal Continuum of Care (CoC) program requires communities create and write down a governance structure for how their communities make decisions about homelessness.

Your community is required to develop a governance structure and decision-making process for YHDP and include it in your Coordinated Community Plan (CCP).

- Youth must have decision-making power in all parts of YHDP, including the creation of the CCP and the selection and design of YHDP projects.
- The process is inclusive of a broad range of partners.
- Your community develops a formal and agreed upon process for making decisions and resolving disagreements.
- The process is respectful of the differing systems each partners represent and the goals and resources of those systems
- The process is clear and transparent to the partners and general public
- The process is subject to feedback and continual improvement

Building Strong Governance - Incorporating Youth Leadership

- The governance structure should provide clarity around the YAB's power and purpose
  - Where does the YAB sit in local decision-making processes?
  - Who do they answer to, and who answers to them?
  - What are the boundaries and spheres of influence for the YAB's power?
- Ensuring youth participate in ALL aspects of YHDP decision-making
  - CCP development and approval
  - Funding competition process and project selection
  - Project launch, evaluation, and continuous quality improvement
  - Ongoing planning and project selection beyond initial YHDP decisions
- Ensuring youth participate in ALL levels of decision-making, not just on the YAB

Building Strong Governance - Transforming How We Work Together

- As the planning process moves forward, pay attention to white dominant culture norms and adultist practices that impact the overall authentic nature of partnering with young people and addressing equity in the community
  - Resource: White Dominant Culture & Something Different
  - Resource: Youth Collaboration Toolkit
- Consider alternatives meeting structures that are more accessible
- Consider new ways of decision-making (majority, consensus, weighted voting, veto options)
- Be clear about the process for amending governance to make improvements

Building Strong Governance - Building on Your Existing Efforts

Your YHDP governance may rely on an existing structure (for example, an existing CoC youth committee) OR create a new one to account for the breadth of stakeholders involved in the YHDP process.

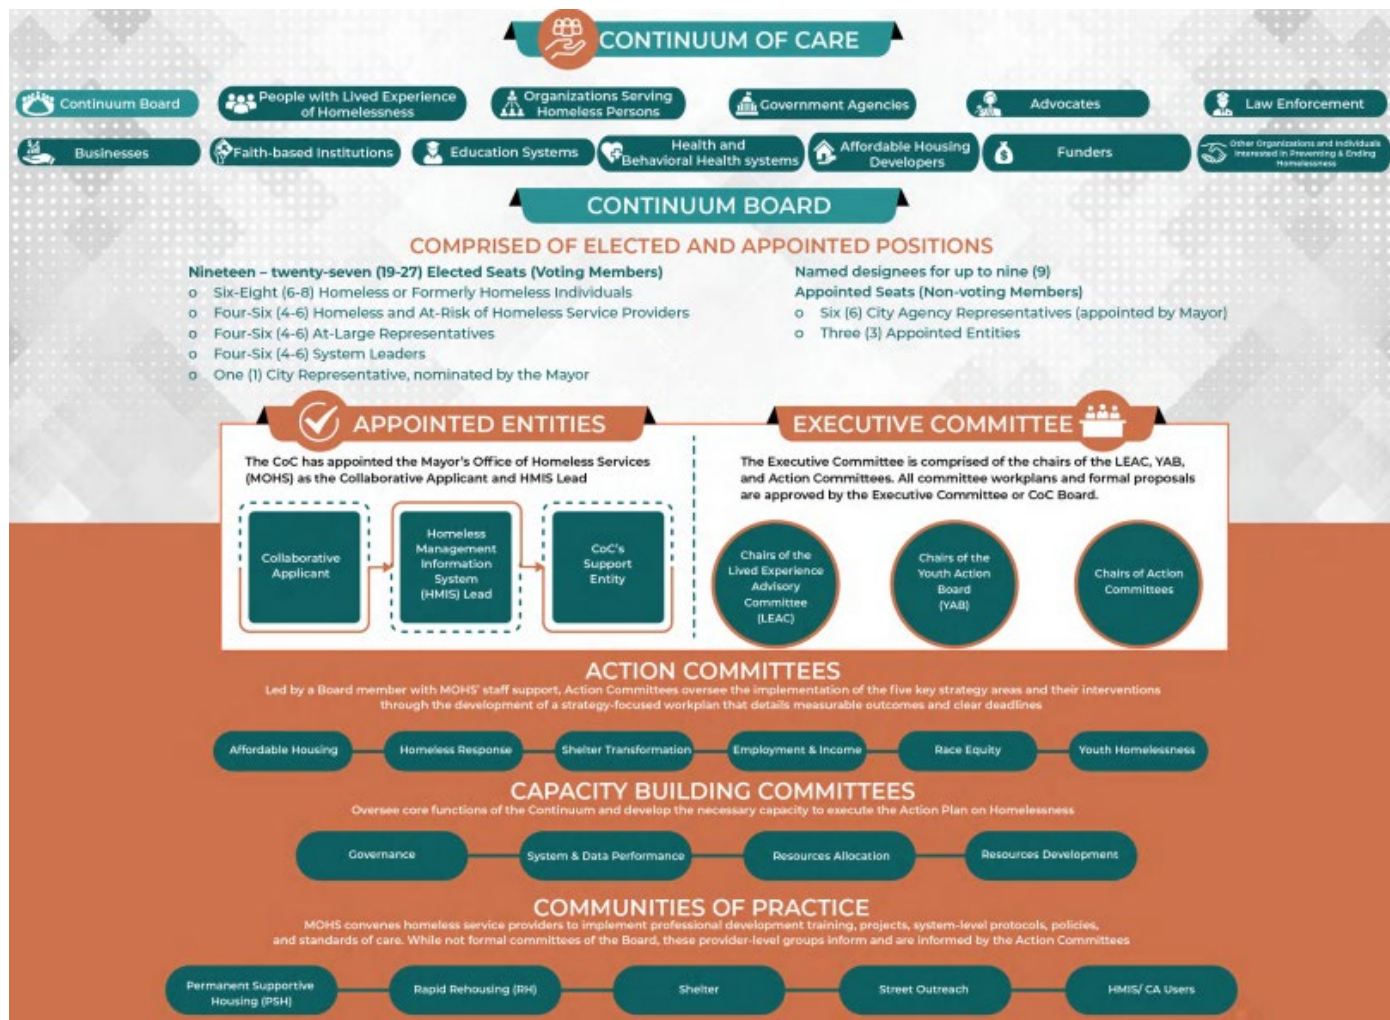

- The CoC governance structure can be used as a starting point but should not be the default.
- Consider changes that need to be made to incorporate the YAB's position in the work, as well as other new partners.
- Meet with the CoC board (and/or governance committee) to jointly plan how to change the governance structure and incorporate the YAB.
- Consider how YAB governance/bylaws may need to be different than other committees of the CoC
- Revisit conflict-of-interest policy to ensure it facilitates participation of people with lived experience who may be participating in programs

YAB Governance

YAB governance has its own unique considerations and its structure may not be exactly like other CoC committees. Communities should support the YAB to make decisions about its governance and consider alignment and coordination with the overall CoC governance.

True Colors United and CSH will work with your community and YAB members to consider:

- YAB Values: Establishing group values will be the foundation of what the YAB will choose to work on and how they can collaboratively do it together.
- Models of Decision-Making: Making decisions can be challenging. YABs are encouraged to identify and decide on a decision making model that works best for the collective. Examples: majority rule, consensus voting
- YAB Structure and Roles: The YAB should decide on a structure and roles. Examples: chairs, co-chairs, secretaries, presidents, contributors, leads, flat/non-hierarchical structure.
- YAB Goals: Once the YAB members are selected and start meeting, they should start working on identifying SMARTIE goals for their functionality as a unit and for the collaborative efforts of your YHDP team. SMARTIE goals are Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Realistic, Time-bound, Inclusive, and Equitable.

For more, see True Colors United's Youth Collaboration 201 Roadmap.

YAB Governance - Membership

True Colors United and CSH can also support your YAB to establish membership expectations and strategies for recruitment and retention.

- Membership Requirements: It is important to establish membership requirements before you begin YAB recruitment so they are clear and transparent from the beginning. Criteria to consider:
  - Lived experience and/or expertise
  - Other forms of experience
  - Commitment to addressing youth homelessness and housing instability
  - Representation of Black, Indigenous, People of Color (BIPOC) and LGBTQ+ individuals
  - Other identities or experiences important in your community
- Membership Expectations: Any details on the process, terms, and expectations for becoming a member.
- Recruitment and Retention: Existing YAB members and youth leaders should lead these efforts.
  - Spread the word widely and focus on reaching people who meet the membership priority areas
  - Assess needs for continued participation and make plans for successful transitions
